If it has, then the rental account should be charged with the full amount of the coupons and the State of Pennsylvania credited with its proportion, to be in turn debited when the payment was made. The practice has been to burn the coupons and for a committee of the directors to so certify, but unless these certificates can be found no adjustment of this account is possible, save by a process of deduction, the evidences in the coupons themselves being destroyed. We are thus left to the inference that all may possibly have been paid, but inference is not correct accounting. ACCRUED TAXES TO SEPTEMBER 30th, 1892. INCREASE, $9,260.03. Based on the taxes paid in the fiscal year ending September 30th, 1891, I estimate that the above sum had accrued up to September 30th, 1892, the...
