Now wakes the lovely, nestling Arbutus Where low it lies embalmed in withered leaves, That spread their glowing pall above its bier And shrouded it within its autumn grave. The guardian cerements gently pressed aside, Lo! like sweet infant faces, dewy-fresh, Fragrant, rose-tinted, and yet waxen fair, Smile the dear blossoms, - darlings of the spring. They rise renewed in beauty: Nurturing rain From farthest realms of sky hath visited And fed their hidden life, and windy March Hath touched the petals peering through the mould And shed the auroral glow of Indian shells; And now bright April suns distil the spice And balsam gathered from earth's secret heart By trailing tendrils searching all her stores. They wake in beauty, and with them awakes The yearning mother-love, that cannot quench About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
